Wonders of Walking

We are blessed here on Vancouver Island with a climate that allows us to enjoy our outdoor assets year round (even in the snow that OCCASIONALLY falls!). There are some who enjoy more physically challenging pastimes, such as running or cycling; however, there is something to be said for the simplicity of walking. There are so many wonderful parks, trails and road routes in Nanaimo to be explored.

But how do I get started you ask? Easy-head out your door, be it the door to your office building at lunch or your home. Walk for ten minutes around the neighbourhood or nearest park and then head back. From there, simply add five minutes to your route until you've reached your walking goal- be it for time or for distance. For most people, general health benefits will be gained by simply walking 30 minutes a day.

From my desk here at Bowen Park, I see folks heading out all day long for their walks. There is an older gentleman in particular that comes to mind that walks his elderly dog at least five times a day through the trails along the Millstone Creek. He is a fixture here at Bowen Park always ready with a friendly wave or a quick conversation. Even on the rainiest of days when it would be easy just to eat lunch at my desk, I see him, and his beaming grin makes me roll back my chair, lace up my shoes and head out for a stroll.

So grab a walking partner or load up your iPod with some good tunes and get out there! If you are looking for more inspiration and/or guidance, check out page 53 of the current Leisure Guide for an array of walking programs. Park Update: Richard's Marsh

The parks trail crew recently completed a boardwalk across Richard's Marsh in Cinnabar Valley. Completing the 450 foot boardwalk was no easy task with crews working in chest high mud for much of the installation. Their hard work has resulted in what can only be described as an impressive structure that allows visitors to the area to really get up close and enjoy the natural surrounds.

The area is rich with wildlife and marsh plants and has already become a popular bird watching spot. The boardwalk connects two neighbourhoods and is expected to be well used by residents in the area. Public access to the marsh is at 69 Ranch View Drive.
