Public input sought for intersection upgrades at Rutherford and Nelson Roads

Summary

The City of Nanaimo is seeking public input on two (2) options for intersection upgrades at Rutherford and Nelson Roads, and will be receiving verbal or written feedback until Monday June 27, 2016.

In December 2015, Council directed staff to prepare detailed design drawings and costing for a roundabout and associated road works at the intersection of Rutherford and Nelson Roads. This was identified as the preferred access option for Linley Valley West from an open house in October 2015.

The functional design work is complete, with the process resulting in two (2) possible upgrade options including a multi-lane roundabout or signalized intersection. Each option has distinct functional and financial impacts and public input is being sought to support and refine the recommendation. Measures for speed mitigation and a new multi-use trail along Rutherford Road are included in both options, with potential traffic calming measures on Nelson Road. Detailed information and feedback survey are available at the project website.

Feedback received will be summarized and included in a July 2016 report to Council.

Strategic Link: Taking Responsibility to be an Excellent Municipal Government

Key Points

- Intersection upgrades at Rutherford and Nelson Roads is the preferred option to provide access to Linley Valley West.
- Both a Multi-lane Roundabout or Signalized Intersection will provide an acceptable level of service for current and future traffic demand, but have different costs and challenges.
- The City is seeking public comment on options before selecting a preferred option.

Quotes

"It's both valuable and important to consult with all public interests when making decisions on significant infrastructure upgrades. We look forward to hearing from residents and including their feedback in the recommendation to Council."
