City of Nanaimo update on the opening of recreation facilities

Facilities closed in March due to COVID-19 pandemic

Summary

A planning process is underway to reopen City of Nanaimo recreation facilities. Staff from the City's Department of Parks, Recreation and Culture are developing a complex and detailed reopening strategy to ensure the health and safety of everyone entering a City facility.

The process for developing this Reopening Strategy involves the following steps:

- consulting and working through established guidelines and recommendations from various organizations, including the Province, WorkSafe BC, BC Recreation and Parks Association, Lifesaving Society, viaSport and more
- conducting an in-depth Risk Assessment and preparing a Site Safety Plan (as required by Worksafe BC), for five major recreation centres, four sheets of ice, three aquatics facilities and four activity centres
- reviewing programs and services and determining what can safely continue, what needs modification and what needs to be delayed during this recovery phase
- working through a Service Delivery review where it is determined what can operate at each facility and with how many people
- revising operating schedules based on enhanced cleaning practices, physical distancing and provincial order of 50 or less per activity
- training and recertifying staff on new safety protocols, such as enhanced lifesaving protocols, retrofitting buildings, purchasing specialized supplies and obtaining required personal protective equipment

The reopening plans are well underway, and staff will provide an update to the community as soon as possible once plans are confirmed.

The City of Nanaimo Department of Parks, Recreation and Culture closed most of its facilities for programs, rentals and drop-in activities on Monday, March 16 after the Provincial Health Officer, Dr. Bonnie Henry, cancelled gatherings of more than 50 people as a way to slow down the transmission of COVID-19. Since that time, most outdoor amenities have reopened and some outdoor programs have resumed. For more information on the City's response to COVID-19, visit www.nanaimo.ca/COVID19.
