MAP SYMBOLOGY

Residential Addresses are symbolized according to the number of Daily Needs destinations accessible from each address. Grey symbols represent addresses with no connections, while progressively darker shades of green represent addresses connected to one, two, three, or all four Daily Needs destination categories.

Residential Address are also symbolized using proportional circles based on the total number of dwelling units at each address. Larger circles indicated addresses with a greater number of residential units, while smaller circles represent addresses with fewer units.

This combined symbology allows users to identify both the level of access to Daily Needs destinations and the concentration of residential units.
